Subject: 3D, 3J and 3K series standard product adhesive sheet change

This Product Advisory Notice is to alert you that Grayhill will be changing the supply strategy for an internal adhesive component used in our 3D, 3J, and 3K standard products.

Please forward this notification to the appropriate person(s) in your organization.

Description of Change

Grayhill uses adhesive-backed polyester sheets to adhere metal dome switch contacts to printed circuit boards. These “dome retaining sheets” or DRSS have historically been purchased from outside suppliers having been steel-rule die or laser cut.

Grayhill has acquired high-speed laser cutting capability to fabricate dome retaining sheets in-house to the same specifications as those purchased from outside suppliers.

Reason for Change

Adhesive backed DRSS have a limited shelf life. Grayhill upholds the shelf-life rating, disposing of DRSS once the shelf life expires. This leads to scrap and necessitates additional purchase orders to outside suppliers.

With the advent of high-speed laser cutting equipment, adhesive sheet production is no longer limited to steel rule die cutting. Laser cutting is equally effective and produces parts to the same tolerances as die cutting. By fabricating adhesive sheets in-house Grayhill greatly reduces lead times, eliminates shelf-life scrap, and reduces purchase orders.

Grayhill has tested and verified that the roll stock material for our vertically integrated laser cutting is equivalent to previously purchased material. Grayhill has developed internal guidelines for processing, storing, and maintaining the adhesive roll stock and well as the piece parts produced.

Effective Date

Grayhill will start using internally produced adhesive sheets by 01-May-2025 for our standard products.

The change applies to Grayhill standard products as outlined below, as well as any catalog- or standard-based custom-configured parts which includes custom artwork or software version “YYs” that are based on Grayhill standard products. This does not include fully customer-owned designs.
